Frankly, we do not consider ourselves any more stupid than the next fellow, and, correspondingly, deem ourselves characteristically and colloquially qualified to stand in awe at the silent sixty presidential campaign waged by our buddy, Franklin Roosevelt.

Just as each of his predecessors, Franklin Delano Roosevelt erred, but unlike others before him, the extent and intent of his social and political errors will only be uncovered by time. We hold judgment on him therefore until that time.

But the Republican party, naturally had things to do and they could not wait for nothing. Thus, their criticisms.

We admire our good President's sagacity in his comparatively passe reception of the criticism and third term boogie woogie.

We guess he has also heard that time is the great healer.

Students wondering about the missing Tuesday Golden Gater should be glad to know at this time that it really isn't missing. It just wasn't scheduled, that's all.

Whenever there is a holiday in the week there is only one paper.

This is due to the fact that it requires from two and one-half to three days to put out an issue. A holiday in the week trims down the time considerably. We. journalistically speaking, the editor, do not feel that we can ask the journalism students to give up their holiday.

In fact, we are afraid we might have lost one of our major editors had we continued on schedule. We know how wives can get. Mrs. Bicknell has practically lost her husband, Ernest, two days out of the week already to the Golden Gater. She might have gotten gosh awful sore if we had insisted on a Tuesday rag. Even her young son might have been laid open to journalism inhibition. That would have been cutting a great career short.

We know you're not sore now.

Incidentally, there will only be a Tuesday paper next week. That is, if Thanksgiving is not changed between now and then.

Don't ever put out a questionnaire!

We did it once and pledged ourselves to do something about it.

But no one seems to want to help us. We asked Mrs. Nattinger, chief of the undermanned co-op staff and she told us she didn't have anything to say about anything. After all, though, we guess that's her priv-

But, then again, we thought all along it was our cafeteria.

We eat there!

Or do we?

Following is a typical conversation in connection with the questionnaire. (Ed. note .-The girl with the nose is the Gater reporter.)

Girl-What do you propose to do about the situation here in the cafeteria, Ma? The kids seem to think it isn't in such good shape.

Ma-I have nothing to say.

Girl—Then you have nothing to say.

Ma-Certainly

Girl-You mean you do want to say something?

Ma—Certainly not.

Girl-You dor even want to be quoted? Ma—By all means.

Now you see what we're up against. This just makes us fight harder though.

Never say die. That's us!

Fantasies of Fashion

By Alice Sweeney

SIX DELICIOUS COLORS

Believe us, this column is definitely not sponsored by the Jell-O. We merely wish to call to your attention one of the newest and brightest fashion trends of the year; the introduction of pastel wools into winter wardrobes. Some of the colors which will lighten the bleakness of winter days are daffodil yellow, hyacinth blue, lilac, salmon pink, lime green and periwinkle blue. Peeping out from under dark coats and furs, these pastel woolens have an uplifting effect on both the wearers and their general public.

WINTER WHITE

Another highlight of fall fashions is the innovation of white hats. These come in the softest felts, fabrics and even angora and afford a striking contrast to black ensembles. White gloves are, of course, a San Francisco tradition.

SPRING PARADE

Looking ahead to the not too distant future when the designers will present their spring styles, we would like to preview some future fashion favorites. Dirndls are reappearing on the scene in both bright wools and prints. They still keep their peasant effects with touches of embroidery in yarn and metallic threads. The tunic, too, is regaining some of its former popularity, some varying slightly with apron effects which make for practicality by their changeability.

Color will again run rampant and clever females will combine several shades to the best advantage; however, we still like the combination of pale blue and brown and do not care much for the teammates, brown and

Lee Tracy Interviewed

By Earl Anderson

Lee Tracy, popular stage and screen star, who is currently appearing here in 'Every Man for Himself,' (his first San Francisco stage appearance), took time out after the performance last night to see this writer and give him a brief insight into his career.

Backstage, Mr. Tracy was totally unlike the glib, fast-talking characters we have become accustomed to seeing him play in pictures. He can be easily recognized, being about 5 feet 11 inches, slender, with light blond hair. However, he was understandably tired, for in addition to regular performances Mr. Tracy is occupied with rewriting, cutting, and polishing the play for future Broadway production.

In answer to the question regarding early ambitions he replied:

"I first became interested in dramatics while at military school, but in college studied to be an electrical engineer, soon finding out that that was the wrong job since I had a poor head for figures.

When the war started I joined the army, and while in service had plenty of time to think about what to do in the future. After the war was over I didn't want to go back to college, and the easiest way to get rich quick was to go on the stage.

I went to New York, and by lying about having had a lot of experience I was able to get a job doing every kind of conceivable part with a traveling stock company. Coming back to New York after several years on the road, my first big break came in George Kelly's 'The Showoff.' '

It is interesting to hear from a successful actor that he did not enter the theatrical profession with any ideas of glory, but that his real reason was a purely mercenary one.

"My favorite stage part was in Broadway, which ran for two years. After that show I was 'Hildy Johnson' in 'The Front Page,' leaving the show to go into pictures in 'Big Time' in 1929. I played a couple of small parts but didn't seem to be getting anywhere so I went back to 'The Front Page,'' and after it finished did several other plays.

'Blessed Event' and 'Turn Back the Clock' are my favorite pictures, although 'Turn Back the Clock' wasn't very popular. The fast talking reporter in 'Blessed Event' was not a difficult part because I had been doing that sort of thing on the stage for years.

In 1938 I was offered the part of 'Harry Van' in the London company of 'Idiot's Delight.' It was such a swell part, and I had never played London, so I went over and played it for several months. I'd heard London audiences were hard on American actors, but they were wonderful to me. "Every Man for Himself' brings the record up to date."

The last half of the play is extremely entertaining, and as soon as the tightening process is completed, as it no doubt will be in a day or so, the whole show should be extremely amusing, and well worth the while of State

sat, enthralled, in the Baptist church auditorium on Friday, November 8, between the hours of 12 and 1, for they were witnessing a demonstration which few Staters have ever before had the privilege to enjoy.

Young Joseph James stood on the tiny platform of the church, and told how negro folk music was born. He did not tell the story of the songs of his race in words alone, but, with a richness of tonal quality and the fine touch of an artist, he sang his

Beginning with the negro spiritual, he proceeded through the work song, and ended with the negro "blues" song. He told, in a way that only he could tell, how a race, so often enslaved and persecuted, would naturally adopt the story of another people who had thus been driven, and make that story a part of its own culture through the medium of song. Then, to exemplify his tale, he gradually developed the famous negro spiritual, 'Go Down, Moses," assisted by Mrs. James at the piano Aside from his superior musical talent, Mr. James, who quite recently was seen in San Francisco in one of the leading roles of "Run, Li'l Chillun," displayed a delightful ability for showmanship. This was especially evident in that section of his lecture which dealt with work songs, wherein he thrilled his audience by requesting it to join with him in beating out the rhythm of the song. Then, with a grace and power unsurpassed, he sang 'Water Boy."

Although pressed for time, James managed to finish his lecture with an old negro folk song written in the form of an oratorio. Once again he showed his fine ability as a singer, when he sustained the final note for a full twenty-five seconds.

Frederic Burk Atumnus Is Literary Credit

Recognizing alumnus Mary Lee Jahn's book, "Deedo and Fawny," as book worthwhile to own, Frederic Burk added it to her library this week as a tribute to National Book Week (November 10-16).

Miss Jahn, now a senior at Lowell high school, attended Frederic Burk from kindergarten to the eighth grade, all the while showing marked ability in art and other subjects. Just 16, Miss Jahn had her book published by the Oxford university press recently.

"Deedo and Fawny" is the story of two deer who get lost in the outdoors. Both illustrated and written by the young protege, this book appeals to the two to five age group in text.

"Certainly any age would be impressed by the color and rhythm of action of the illustrations," said Mrs. Bernice Van Gelder of the Frederic Burk library. Betty Fisher, student assistant who has been working in the bookstore, is now in charge of the book department, states Miss Sally Wilde, manager of the bookstore. Miss Fisher was promoted this month to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Bernice Bianchi.

Butt Business Begins To Grow Serious The situation grows acute! Confidentially, we can't find a feasible explanation! All we want to know is why are

State students cutting down on their smoking? To bear us out, we learned through the "Allies of the Setting Sun," impromptu campus organization, that things are going to the dogs. For example, "butts" are shrinking to the incredible size of one-half to one-quarter inch! Can this be attributed to the defense tax? Are State students switching to dope? How will this affect Joe Palooka's enlisting in Bohannon J. Crump says No!

CRUSADE FOR NON-SMOKING WOMEN ON

A new club, Alpha Nu Sigma (Amalgamated Non Smokers), has been formed on the University of California campus. This club had a very quaint beginning. It first started when a group of Cal boys resolved not to take out girls that smoked, so they advertised in the Daily Californian Ice Box column, an equal to our Letters to the Editor, that they would like to meet nice girls that did not smoke.

After several letters had been published, they finally asked any girls interested to meet them at the Engineers court. The girls were a bit wary, so they finally put in the telephone number of Robert Barrett and stated that the five were no glamour boys, but that they just wanted to meet nice girls that didn't smoke, not glamour girls, either. The telephone idea worked and there were 14 calls the first night and 7 or 8 the next. Then it was decided to form a club that would be a good idea and that its activities would give the students a chance to meet. All those interested got together and duly elected Robert Barrett president. It was then suggested that it might be a good idea to send out letters to other colleges and have them form a chapter.

President of Chapter, one Robert Barrett, appointed his sister, Margaret, a State student, and also a member of the Cal club, to organize Chapter 2 at State. As yet the letter from the committee on organizing a social club here hasn't arrived, but the Gater mail box should soon contain a letter to the editor from the Alpha Nu Sigma.

Politics Again?

What became of the rumor that the Young Republicans were starting a club on the campus? Was it that they finally got wise to the fact that the Young Democrats' club, contrary to what its name might suggest, didn't function for the advancement of the Democratic party, but for the interests of better government, including all parties and so joined its ranks? Perhaps this rumor was only a product of the pre-election excitement.

Kampus Kapers

Gala doings in the East bay section of the bay region took place last Friday evening when members of the Rockridge Juniors presented a dance. Some of the dancing Staters were: George Youngdale, Sigma Pi Sigma pledge, and Doris Barber; Russ Horstmann and Vivian Silva, Bib'n' Tueker; Tom Stack and Bernice Coakley; Phyllis Morgan, and former Staters, Martha Roecker and Margaret Upton.

Tap dancing is a successful business as far as Eleanor Powell is concerned so Bee Norwitt often employs the same technique to get what she wants. However, Bee doesn't get paid for it, and she swings into her dance no matter where she happens to be.

To the Editor

In a recent edition of the Gater, your columnist, Muriel Sullivan, in writing on the injustice of expecting women to become soldiers, stated, .. men are a selfish lot in that they will force women to take their place in society ... " and that, " after women are accustomed to this higher level, the men try to push them back into subserviency.' What bunk! When has any woman had to be forced to take a place in society? Why they live on it. They thrive on it. It's almost all they talk about. It's generally the reason they go to college. Their greatest ambition is usually to be prominent in it. As to their being pushed back into subserviency, that's probably where they belong. But men aren't trying and won't try to push them backwe're too good natured. Women will likely remain pets till doom's day with each succeeding generation becoming a little more It's discouraging to think of what they may come to. Even now they're taking to adopting babies or living without them to save themselves the inconvenience of motherhood Your columnist also alibies, "In the old days women were physically fitted to fight beside men but now they are not and it would take several generations to train our women to the point where they could endure as much as the men."

Why have they allowed themselves to degenerate physically? Is there ayone but themselves to blame for it? Haven't they neglected work or exercise that would keep them physically strong? Haven't they sa rificed their general health at every turn in the interest of attractive-

Miss Sullivan's argument is comparable to that of a youth who, when refused admission to the navy, blamed it-and not himself because he had become physically unfit hanging about pool rooms

Womens' Sports

Using the theme of cosmopolitan San Francisco, the Women' Athletic association will sponsor the most outstanding event of their season when they act as host to representatives from about 53 Bay Area high schools on Saturday, November 16.

According to Chairman Inez Erickson, there will be many ath letic activities and innumerable forms of recreation featured, including: badminton, volleyball, wingo, ping-pong, paddle tennis and deck tennis. As an added inducement all of the high school girls will be taught the Conga under the supervision of Anne Whit-

Playday Defeats

Interest has been running high in the noon rec badminton tournaments. Bernadette Fratessa has reached the finals in women's singles, having defeated Helen Ashton and Edith Mareck. In the girls doubles, Kaliope Colombotos and Edith Mareck nosed out Lucille Henry and Jo Biggi with a score of 15-13; 13-15;

The results as to State's standing in the various playdays have $\,$ been announced by President Jo Biggi. At the hockey playday at Mill's college the Cal senior team defeated the State women, 1-0, and in the game with Santa Rosa Junior college, Jo Biggi apparently became confused and made the only point for Santa Rosa, the final score being 1-1.

State's shuttlecock tossers placed third in the competition at the badminton playday at Marin Junior college.
